IT'S A QUESTION

Whether or No Walter Vaughan is Married.

Annie Higbee Claims to Be His Wife—His Affection Cooled—A Lover's Letters—Making Love in a Hammock—The Girl's Story.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 6.—The celebrated case of Miss Annie E. Higbee or Mrs. Annie E. Vaughan, as she claims to have been married to Walter Vaughan, came up for trial yesterday in the Town Hall of New York, Long Island, before Justice Cornelius Ferguson. Vaughan says that the marriage was part of a game, and that the clergyman was one of the party. Mrs. Vaughan, as she styles herself, is a plump, rosy-cheeked lass with bright black eyes. She was represented by Joseph H. Leggett of Brooklyn, and McCarthy, Guy R. Polton and Geo. Poucher of this city appeared for Jerome Walter Vaughan, defendant. Mr. Vaughan, with his father, was present in court. He is a carefree youth of about 17 years with short, light hair, rather negligently arranged. He seemed to enjoy the proceedings very much, as did his father, a stout, pleasant-looking man with scant dark hair.

AND KNOW WHITE HEADS. The witnesses were J. J. Snyder, Frank Netus, Miss Gertrude Bennett, Miss Beila Heilman, John A. Case and Mr. Edward Perry. Mr. Leggett, in opening the case, said that the defendant was to obtain the dictum of the court as to the validity of the marriage that was solemnized on the 19th of last July. "We claim," said the counsel, "that it was a valid marriage, according to the statute of the State, which defines it as a civil contract. We shall prove that these parties became acquainted in November, 1882, and that this acquaintance continued down to the 19th of last July; that he introduced her to several parties as his wife. We shall prove that these parties lived together as man and wife. After a time the defendant left his home and went away to Canada, or some other place, and on his return it seemed that his affection had cooled, and when she addressed to him a letter as her husband he affected to treat the whole thing as a joke. Mrs. Vaughan takes the stand. The plaintiff herself takes the stand. "What is your full name?" asked in a low voice, "Annie E. Vaughan." She first became acquainted with the defendant about a year ago this month at the residence of Mr. Walters in Flatbush, who introduced her to her. "Between that time and the 19th of July," continued the witness, "I suppose I met him about thirty times. My mother was away at Southampton, L. I., and I was staying with my married sister, Mrs. Mundy, where Mr. Vaughan used to call on me. "What did he do when he went there?" "Put his arm around my waist and made love to me. "Where did you meet him on the 19th of July?" "At the residence of Mr. John A. Case. He asked me

TO BECOME HIS WIFE. And I said 'Yes.' He then brought me up to Mr. Anson and said, 'Charley, Annie and I want to be married, and you are to be the witness before him and Charley said, 'Will you take this man to be your husband? Will you love, honor, obey and cherish him, in sickness and in health, for richer or poorer?' and I said 'I will.' Then he asked Walter the same, and Walter said 'I will,' and after that Charley said, 'Now, Annie, remember, this is a lawful marriage, and it will stand law; and Walter said, 'I will prove it to you; I will take you where I can prove it.' He led me up to Mr. Case and said: 'When a young lady and gentleman have admitted before witnesses that they are husband and wife, and a ceremony is performed, it is a lawful marriage.' Mr. Case said, 'Certainly,' and Charley said, 'I will send it to you in black and white.' "Were there witnesses present?" "Yes," Gertrude Bennett, Ed Berry and four others.

"Did you ever see this letter," said the counsel, handing her the following letter: "New York, July 20, 1883. "Mrs. J. Walter Vaughan: "DEAR WIFE—By mistake and forgetfulness, and also being so wrapped up in your charms, I carried away your valuable manuscript, and I now return it by same mail as this. Good morning and am not the worse for my walk. Hoping you are O. K. after your first night's married life I remain, your loving husband. J. WALTER VAUGHAN. "No. 103, Maiden Lane, or Clarkson street, Flatbush, L. I."

"Did anything else occur that evening?" "Yes," he introduced me to Mr. Frank Hammond as his wife, and I introduced him as my husband, and as we were walking home he said, 'Now, Annie, you must not be surprised if you find the walking you off into a new house before long, and after we got home, as I was hiding him good night, he said, 'Surely you are not going to allow your husband to go home without kissing him good night.' "Did you kiss him?" "Yes sir." "How many times?" "Oh, I don't know how many times. I received a letter from him July 21, saying he would be up in the evening."

"When you received that letter did he come?" "Yes, and met me at my sister's, and we talked for sometime, and he told me about his financial affairs. He invited me to go to a straw ride, but my mother would not let me go. "Then did you receive that letter?" "Oh, yes, I did. Thursday evening, about the second or third of August, and he came alone. "Was anyone there that night?" "No, we were alone for the first time since we were married." "State what occurred." The witness gave the questioner to understand that the MARRIAGE HAD BEEN CONSUMMATED. The answer was given without the slightest hesitation, and scarcely the semblance of a blush. It seemed to tickle old Mr. Vaughan immensely, and he laughed heartily as he assured his boy on the back. "Before this took place state just what was said." "I told Walter that Charley was not an ordained minister, and he said that it made no difference, that I was his lawful wife, and I firmly believed that I was."

Coleman Hawkins and dangerously wounded. After the shooting Hawkins returned home and shot himself, dying instantly. Both are wealthy farmers. The trouble arose from a dispute about a ditch between their farms.

THE A. B. C. UNION.

Investigation of the New York Grocery Clerks—Likely a Hoax.

NEW YORK, December 6.—All the grocery stores in the city must have been deserted yesterday by their owners, and a majority of them by the clerks, judging by the stout, burly forms and stolid German faces which filled Justice Powers' Court. They had come to listen to the revelations concerning the secret, oath-bound A. B. C. Union of grocery clerks, banded together for the purpose of robbing their employers. Herman Tietzen, 18 years old, clerk for Henry Fuller, No. 823 Second avenue, and a member of the A. B. C. Union, was the first witness put on the stand. He said that some time last year Krooz asked him whether he had any chance to take committed his first theft of $2. Since then he had been stealing from his employer. In November 28 he took $2.69, which is the specific sum which Krooz is charged in the indictment with having received. Krooz asked him whether that was that time, and witness told him it was. He made memorandums on paper every time he gave Krooz money, and handed four such lists to the justice. They were marked "Exhibits 1 to 4," and he stole all the money marked in the exhibits at the dates set down and gave it to Krooz. He had to give him $25 for every $100 he gave to the union. Krooz promised to give him back the money less the commission whenever he needed it to open a new store. In the 17th of November Krooz invited him to attend a meeting of the A. B. C. U. to be held the next afternoon, at No. 81 Second. He and Krooz were present at the meeting. Henry Precht, Anderson's clerk and secretary of the union, was there. A clerk of E. A. Jones of 719 Second avenue, whose name witness did not know, entered, and Krooz asked the latter how he was making out. Anderson's clerk gave Krooz $125. Shortly afterward two clerks of E. F. Appenhausen, 80 Second avenue entered, and Krooz asked them the same question. They handed him $125 each. Krooz put the money in his pocket and then stated that the capital fund was $250.00. Secretary Precht had three or four books in his possession. In one of them witness read the entry about the $250.00. In conclusion, Tietzen said that every time he gave Krooz money he told the latter that it was stolen from Mr. Fuller. Witness was first accused of stealing by his employer last Sunday. After he made his confession he was allowed the run of the premises, and

NO ATTEMPT TO LOCK HIM UP. He was made until the next night. He was aware that Fuller's nephew, Myers, was also stealing from his employer, that he had kept that knowledge a secret, and that he had never told any one about the A. B. C. Union except his employer and Myers. "I will prove," exclaimed Col. Spencer at this point, "that these two boys were plundering their employer and invented this ghost story to clear themselves. I never heard of such a thing in my life. It would make a good plot for a novel."

"How often did you take money from the drawer in the course of a day?" asked Col. Spencer. "Whenever I had a chance." Witness never played fool. He sometimes went to a theater and drank beer, but paid for this with his own earnings, which amounted to $12 a month and board. He always KEPT THE STOLEN MONEY separate as he means to open a store. While the disposition of the sum of $250 was being traced by Col. Spencer, witness stated that he had stolen about $125 more. This seemed to surprise the counsel for the prosecution and the Justice as much as the counsel for the defense.

"We'll get at some more new facts," said Col. Spencer, and shortly thereafter obtained an admission from the witness that after regaining all about the A. B. C. Union to his employer he turned a book he had received from the union. "Why did you burn that book?" "We were worn to do so whenever there was a likelihood of the objects of the union becoming known. Every member burned his book, and so I did."

LONDON, December 6.—Sir Henry James, the Attorney-General, has written Lord Chief Justice Coleridge taking exception to the conduct of the counsel for the defense in the O'Donnell case.

The Attorney-General suggests that should counsel in future cases attempt to interject statements in the nature of evidence before the court, it is being tried shall inform the counsel that such practice is inadmissible and not to be permitted. Should an appeal be taken from this ruling the question should be decided by a full court. Had Justice Denman, he says, objected to the statements of Charles Russell in opening the O'Donnell case, the defense appealed, and a full bench decided the words admissible, O'Donnell would have been acquitted. The Lord Chief Justice in reply says:

"In November, 1881, the judges decided, 12 against 2, that such statements should not be allowed, which decision probably escaped Justice Denman's memory."

Knapp, Benjamin Knapp, Nellie J. Knapp, A. H. Houtzelle, Shepard Knapp, Thomas M. Knapp, Vernon Knapp, and J. Knapp and George O. Knapp. The petitioners all state that they are the children and heirs-at-law of the late George Knapp.

They further ask the court to grant their mother's request, and to appoint in her stead, Edward H. Allen administrator of said estate. Judge Wernert took no action in the matter today.

THE VERDICT.

The Alleged Conspirators Acquitted by the Direction of the Judge.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock Judge Noonan, in the Court of Criminal Correction, instructed the jury in the conspiracy case against Joseph H. McKelvey, Ed. Butler, Frank D. Lutz and David W. Caruth to acquittal the defendants. This was in accordance with the instructions demanded by Chester Krum in his address of yesterday. Thus the incident of the Big Four ends, as everybody expected, in a fizzle. The defendants received the congratulations of their friends to the disgust of the attorneys of the Law and Order League.

PARIS, December 6.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows an increase of 4,425,000 francs gold and a decrease of 1,525,000 francs silver.

A petition was filed in the Probate Court today, asking that a guardian be appointed for James A. Hardy, an old and well-known citizen. The petitioner is Charles A. Hardy, a nephew, who lives in Philadelphia. He states that his uncle, suffering from softening of the brain, and that Doctors Banduly, Robinson, Gregory and others, have pronounced him incurable. Mr. Hardy is a very wealthy old gentleman. He has no children. He is well known to all old residents of the city.

The following marriage licenses were issued today: John Hunter and Miss Susanah Bolla; John Graham and Miss Adelaide Corbett; Chas. Keaton and Miss Lavina Cayon; Garrett Thibay and Miss Lizzie Palmer; Garrett Richardson and Mrs. Luetitia Richardson; John B. Frim and Miss Kestle R. Purkett; Jeremiah Dunn and Miss Hattie Bradshaw; John L. Davis and Miss Jeanie Kirkwood; Louis May and Miss Johanna A. Apel.

No Decision Yet. A decision expected from Judge Barclay in the Campbell prohibition case this morning. It is not yet handed down, however, and it is believed that nothing will be done until Wednesday of next week.
